

EXPANSION HERE of Reynolds Metals will see seamless aluminum cans for tuna made at 300 per minute, directly from pre-coated coil, on this shallow drawing press. Two such units are being installed at Reynolds plant in Torrance, to serve the West Coast tuna industry.

Reynolds Co. Steps Up Its Output Here

Reynolds Metals Company today announced a step-up in production at its Torrance plant.

Expansion, part of a nationwide increase planned in Reynolds' far-flung operations, will see aluminum tuna cans and beer can lids produced here.

New equipment installed will make seamless aluminum containers economically available to West Coast packers, who account for 95 per cent of the nation's canned tuna output.

Doubling Capacity
Reynolds is doubling its capacity for coating and treating aluminum can stock, said W. O. Yates, Pacific regional vice president.

Two tuna can lines with total capacity of 80,000,000 cans annually have been installed at the Torrance facility, he stated. The shallow container also is suitable for crabmeat, potted meats and other seafood and specialty meat products.

Aluminum beer can lids will be produced at Torrance on two Bliss presses with total capacity of more than 200,000,000 per year, he said.

The easier to-open lids will be used by Theo. Hamm Brewing Co. at its breweries in Los Angeles and San Francisco and by other West Coast brewers.

Weigh Less Than Half
The aluminum tuna can is a one-piece cup with no side seam or separate bottom. The cans nest when stacked. They weigh less than half as much as cans made of "thin" tinsplate, and reduce tuna freight costs an average of $1.25 per 1,000 cans.

The containers are produced at 300 per minute by the shallow drawing process. Pre-coated aluminum coil is continuously fed through a punch press, which in one operation cuts out a circle of metal, punches it into can shape, trims the edge and flanges it. The can comes out of the press ready to be filled.

PAPER DRIVE
Mrs. Peter Miller, ways and means chairman of Howard Wood PTA, has announced plans for a summer paper drive to be conducted from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. tomorrow. For pick up, donors are asked to call FA-8-8080 extension 335. A prize will be given to the winning summer school class.

Ed Babie, Joe Kline Slated For Trip to Circle K Confab

Two El Camino College students will be among the 600 members of Circle K International from U.S. and Canadian colleges attending the eighth annual convention of the college service organization in Norfolk, Va., Aug. 26-29.

They are Ed Babie, lieutenant governor of division 2, of the California-Nevada-Hawaii district, and Joe Kline, vice president of El Camino Circle K club.

Service Organization
Circle K International is a service organization for college men, sponsored by Kiwanis International, and maintaining the same ideas and objectives. More than 9,500 members are on its rolls, representing a total of over 480 clubs on as many college campuses.

High point of the three-day meeting will be the election of 1963-64 international officers and trustees—a president, two vice presidents, a secretary, and 12 trustees—on Thursday, Aug. 29. The incumbent president is James S. Mathews, a student at Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va. Mathews was elected to the post in San Diego in 1962. He will preside at the Norfolk convention.

Hosts for the eighth annual Circle K convention will be the Circle K Clubs in the Norfolk area. Assisting will be the Kiwanis Club in Norfolk and Division No. 13 of the Capital District. Headquarters for the convention will be The Golden Triangle Motor Hotel in Norfolk.

Principal speakers, in addition to Mathews, will be Sam Bundy, Farmville, N.C., and Charles A. "Nick" Swain, who is currently serving as president-elect of Kiwanis International. Other leaders in Circle K and Kiwanis International and at least one other principal speaker will contribute to the program.

Convention Highlighted
Two other highlights of the convention will be the annual Circle K International achievement award contest, single service award, and the annual oratorical contest.

Activities judged will include service to campus, service to community, and cooperative projects with Kiwanis clubs or other organizations. Winners will be announced at Norfolk.

The subject of the oratorical contest will be "Educate for Freedom." Circle K theme for 1962-63. Elimination trials will be held in closed sessions, and the three top orators will compete publicly for the grand prize.

Other convention activities will include the adoption of convention resolutions and a theme and programs of service for 1963-64, a social program highlighted by special entertainment, and the installation of newly-elected officers and trustees.
